Earth Day Celebration to go forward in Prospect Park

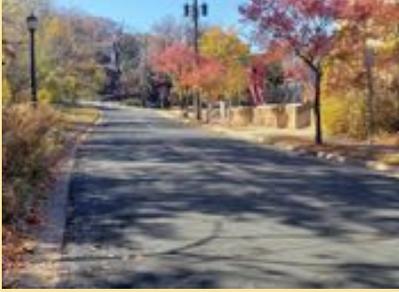

The 2021 Prospect Park Earth Day Clean Up will take on a new look. Beginning on Saturday, April 10 and extending to April 24, you can help clean up garbage & recycling from the road, boulevards, path along the river, and parks.

You can pick up supplies and get your sports water bottle at three locations between 9 am and noon on the 10th.

We'll have tables at the traditional spot on East River Parkway (just east of the Franklin Avenue bridge), the new park at 4th and 29th streets, and Luxton Park.

RSVP for the March 9 Environment Committee Meeting HERE.

Help make Malcolm Ave a better community space!

Neighbors on PPA's Transportation & Safety Committee and Pratt School are building an improved community gathering space on Malcolm Avenue between Sidney Place and Orlin Avenue. Projects being planned in this area include:

- The Jackson Family Memorial with a curriculum to learn about the first African-American children to attend Pratt School,
- Pratt School Playground remodel and renaming,
- Tower Hill Nature Play area,
- A "shared space" on Malcolm Ave. where pedestrians have priority and cars must slow to 10mph.

One of the first steps is calming traffic and experimenting with a new street layout. This spring PPA will use Minneapolis Neighborhood Revitalization Program (NRP) funds to buy materials for wooden planter boxes that will slow traffic, while still letting vehicles through. The planters will create a "chicane" at the intersection with Sidney Place, as illustrated below.

Look for a future announcement about opportunities to help build, plant and water the boxes this spring. We need you and we need your tools!

If the chicane with planters works well, a permanent chicane could be built, perhaps looking like these in Seattle.

In the meantime, for more information, contact Evan Roberts at transportation@prospectparkmpls.org

Why Friendship Matters in a time of COVID-19 Wednesday, March 17th, 1:30-2:30 pm

This interactive presentation explores the value and importance of friendship in these turbulent pandemic times and looks at why finding creative ways to engage with others is so important to our well-being. Staying connected in the face of social distancing matters. Nourishing meaningful relationships and investing in new ones provides a powerful antidote to loneliness. Come connect with us. Together, we can harness the power of friendship and be there for each other when it matters most.

Georgia Afton takes her professional work in elder services personally. She originally worked for her current employer – Little Brothers – Friends of the Elderly (LBFE) – from 1999 to 2003 as the organization's development and communications director. To this day, she cherishes the memory of several Elder Friends made during those years who added joy, meaning and wisdom to her life. Those friendships, coupled with navigating her own parents' elder years from overseas, drew her back to LBFE in 2015. She now serves as the organization's community outreach director and is happy to, once again, embrace the work of ending elder loneliness and isolation through the power of friendship. Georgia's previous nonprofit work has included communications and development roles with Nonviolent Peaceforce and Clare Housing. She earned a B.A. from University of Minnesota and an M.F.A. from Hamline University.

University of Minnesota Twin Cities Campus Master Plan

As neighbors to the West Bank, East Bank and St Paul locations of the Twin Cities campus, we want to know what you think. What does the future of the U of M Twin Cities campus look like to you?

The University of Minnesota is updating its campus plans, across the statewide system. We are starting with the Twin Cities. The physical plan will guide the evolution of our campus for the next decade and will address natural features, open spaces, buildings, land use, and other critical infrastructure.

Your feedback as someone who is often on-campus is requested, through the U of M Twin Cities Campus Master Plan survey. Input from this 10-minute survey will shape the future of our campus and its ability to meet the needs of our students, staff, visitors, and other partners while considering the environment we share with our neighbors.

Follow this link to complete the survey: <https://z.umn.edu/umtc-neighbor>

More information about the Twin Cities Campus Master Plan, with additional ways to provide your insight, can be found at: z.umn.edu/campusmasterplan.

Thank you for your time and interest in the Twin Cities campus!
